

Continued cellular product availability through the next years

Dear Valued Customer, Valued Partner,

We appreciate your continued trust and collaboration. We want to take a moment to assure you that we will maintain regular product shipments of our cellular modules in the next two or three years.

Our commitment to delivering quality products and supporting your business remains unchanged.

Please see below the list of products that are confirmed to remain regularly available through 2025 and 2026:

- LARA-L6004(D)/LARA-L6404(D)

Based on our current projections, we anticipate that we may issue an EOL notification for the above cellular modules in the second half of 2026; however, please note that this timeline is indicative only and may be adjusted in response to market conditions and availability of key components.

When that occurs, we will follow a standard EOL process, which includes a last buy date set for six months after notification and a final shipment occurring 12 months after notification, ensuring a smooth transition.

Furthermore, u-blox will continue to provide support—including the release of maintenance firmware versions to address critical fixes and assistance with quality issues/RMAs—for at least two years after the EOL notification.

Please note that all new orders for the cellular products are NCNR (non-cancellable and non returnable).

To help ensure that your supply needs are met and to avoid any potential delays, we encourage you to review your inventory requirements, provide a regular forecast and place orders according to the lead-time that is currently 16 weeks.
